I. Preface

The Jean Monnet Chair at the German Sport University started its activities in 2011 aiming at deepening education and research at Europe's sole sport university on the role of the EU in sport in a globalising world.

This third report pays attention to the ongoing projects and activities – in particular in the time span 2013/14. The key sections of this report refer to the teaching activities including the “Jean Monnet Lectures on Sport politics” (chapter 3), to the research activities containing new projects on sport and development and the ongoing Ph.D. theses in progress (chapter 4), to conferences, involving in particular the Sport & EU conference 2014 that was jointly hosted by the Institute for European Sport Development and Leisure Studies and the Institute for Political Science of the University of Mainz (chapter 5) and to publications in books and journals as well as presentations and talks given by the academic staff of the Institute of European Sport Development and Leisure Studies (chapter 6).

This 3rd annual report – covering the period from August 2013 to July 2014 – introduces the reader to the state of art of both general and recent teaching and publication activities carried out by the institute. While in previous years the activities have been focussed on the production of comprehensive teaching materials on sport in the European Union, this year's activities have primarily been dedicated to the implementation of the new Master program on Sport Development that includes a substantial focus on European matters.

Challenges for teaching and research in the academic year 2014/2015 will be the publication of the textbook on sport politics and the new academic series on sport politics.

Questions, proposals and critical comments considering these activities are highly welcome and may be addressed to the Jean Monnet Chair.

II. Leitbild/Mission of the Institute

The German Sport University Cologne (GSU) is Germany's most important academic centre of teaching and research in physical education and sport science and one of the largest specialised universities world-wide. With 21 academic departments it covers a wide range of sport science in teaching and research. More than 30 sports are taught in theory and practice in modern facilities. Around 5,500 students, including 350 foreign students, are studying at the GSU, which offers academic Bachelor's and Master's degrees, teaching certificates for various school levels and a doctoral degree. The Institute of European Sport Development and Leisure Studies and its Jean Monnet Chair work towards contributing to the European dimension of sport in particular and to the international development of sport structures in general.

The ongoing interdependence of sport and other societal fields, the increasing economic power of sport, the growing influence of governmental and non-governmental actors on the organisation of sport, its framework, and the continuing Europeanisation and globalisation have increased the importance of sport politics. However, the development of a political science inspired approach to sport and the formation of a particular branch addressing the broad range of sport-related political issues are still at the very beginning.

Against this background, activities of the IESF aim to cooperate with national and international academics in order to bring together findings from political, social, and sport sciences. The overall goal is to illustrate the specific core of sport political action by taking into account the three dimensions polity (structural-institutional), politics (procedural) and policy (content-related). For all dimensions, it is important not only to consider the horizontal differentiation between regional autonomy and governmental regulation, but also the vertical differentiation between local, regional, national, European, and international levels, to meet the needs of a sport political multi-level system. This view is mirrored in the two main research areas of the Institute: national, European, and international sport systems and politics and the role of sport in international development cooperation.

III. Teaching Activities

The Institute of European Sport Development and Leisure Studies (IESF) is engaged in the teaching of various mandatory courses in the following study programmes of the German Sport University Cologne (GSU):

3. Excursion to Brussels

Jean Monnet Lectures

In addition to these mandatory courses the IESF has established a series of public lectures dedicated in particular to the political system of the EU, its history, institutions and procedures as to the topic of sport. The specific focus of these lectures is the linkage of the EU multi-level system and sport politics. All lectures are open for the public.

Education Certificate Studies foreign relation experts for sport

Objectives: students get to know the international sport sponsoring & projects of the Federal Foreign Office and the DOSB as well as German and foreign sport systems and acquire the knowledge about the planning, financing and evaluation of projects abroad. Additionally, the students acquire general competences and knowledge for stays abroad in the working field of „sport and development cooperation”.

Brussels excursion

Within the seminar "European sport politics in practice" students attended key players in the field of politics and sport politics in Brussels. Besides visiting the European Parliament and the European Commission, students of the German Sport University got in contact with main representatives of sport within these two days. The representative of the Sports Unit, Jacob Kornbeck, and the representative of the EOC-EU-office, Charlotte Boetticher, presented their organisations to the students to deepen and widen the knowledge already provided during the seminar. Interesting topics for the students were the future of sport in the European Union as well as the impacts of the program "Erasmus+" on sport. The visit of the Representation of North Rhine-Westphalia stressed the importance of regional representation at the EU level in sport.

III.4 Student Services: European Affairs Office

Targets and Operations

The European Affairs Office (head: Dr. Karen Petry) was part of the IESF until May 2014. The office takes care of the European exchange program ERASMUS. As a contact point and drop-in centre for students and other affiliated university members, the European Affairs Office gives support in terms of planning, organising and realising subject-based stays abroad. Working closely with the Office of International Affairs at GSU, the European Affairs Office is the main contact for the LLP-ERASMUS-program which combines studies, internships, teaching staff mobility and staff mobility at more than 40 partner universities in Europe. The European Affairs Office assists in all aspects of the stay abroad, starting with the preparation and acquisition of language skills and finding a suitable academic or work placement as well as being a general point of contact during the actual time abroad.

Programs

These are the services offered by the European Affairs Office (at the IESF) in summary:

Programs	Services
✓ LLP ERASMUS Study abroad	✓ Consultation
✓ LLP ERASMUS Placement	✓ Support in planning, organizing and realizing a stay abroad
✓ LLP ERASMUS Teaching staff mobility	✓ Field reports of former students
✓ LLP ERASMUS Staff mobility	✓ Evaluation

Within the LLP ERASMUS Study program students can apply at the European Affairs Office to study one or two semesters abroad. In March, the application process for the whole academic year takes place. Students are asked to present a complete application for their selected university. The best applicants are invited for an interview, held in the language of the prospective study. Once the students are chosen, the European Affairs office helps in terms of matriculation and course selection at the host university. There is the possibility to add a short time internship at the end of the semester with the duration of one to three months. It can be realized at the host university, an organisation or school within the host country. Often students find a short time internship at an institute of their host university with the support of their departmental coordinator.

Within the LLP ERASMUS Placement program students have the possibility to gain work experience abroad in the sport sector during a 3 to 12 month stay. Students are asked to search for a placement themselves, with the support of the European Affairs Office. A list with a variety of interesting sports organisations and institutions is available. For teaching degree students there is the possibility to choose one of two partner schools abroad, which constantly offer placements (Ratton School/ Great Britain and Vikki Training School/ Finland) – more partnerships are pursued.

The LLP ERASMUS Teaching staff mobility gives the teaching staff of the German Sports University the possibility to teach at a suitable partner university for a certain amount of days and teaching hours. Hereby, the teaching staff can exchange knowledge, progress language skills, establish partner projects and get to know the university teaching system in other European countries. Additionally, it is an opportunity to represent the German Sports University abroad.

The LLP ERASMUS Staff mobility enables the staff of the German Sports University to experience working abroad at one of the European partner universities within their area. Hereby, the staff can get to know the university system, partners and contact persons, study possibilities and course offers at a partner university.

EUROPASS Mobility

As the German Sports University understands itself as a European university, an extended European network of exchanges is fundamental. The European Affairs Office applies the EUROPASS Mobility, the EUROPASS Vita and language passport to provide comparability and standardization of skills and performance on a multi-national level. Furthermore, the EUROPASS offers the students the possibility to reflect their strengths and receive a personal evaluation.

Organised Sport in Mediated Modernity

Head of the project at IESF:

Prof. Dr. Jürgen Mittag

IESF staff entrusted with the project:

Pia Stemmermann, Daniel Ziesche

Period of research:

since 2012

Funding: Internal key research project of the German Sport University (BSU)

Contents of the project:

The project defines Mediated Modernity as the epoch which started with the declaration of the human rights and which is characterized by a growing pluralisation of lifestyles, but also by a “mediatedness” of all personal circumstances. The sector of sports and physical activity is not the only one which changes dramatically during this era, but due to its massive differentiation and its strong connection to other parts of society it stands as a typical example for societal development and therefore works as an instrument for diagnosis of societal change. The goal of the project is a diagnosis of present modern societies communicated (or mediated) by movement cultures. The central question yet to answer is which expression and which form the mentioned characteristics find and take on in sports and physical activity in this era. The aim of the research project “Sport in Mediated Modernity” is to understand and systematically analyse these changes to develop sports scientific theory (Further information on the project www.dshs-koeln.de/sportmemo).

The colleagues in the sub-project „Organised Sport in Mediated Modernity“ at the institute of European Sports Development and Leisure Studies investigate these changes with regards to sports clubs as the smallest units of organised sport. Thereby, the sports club is considered from a (sport-)political and a (sport-)historical but also from a social scientific perspective with the aim to research the development of the socio-political functions of the sports club as a place and a medium in the process of societal change on a theoretical as well as an empirical level.

Within this framework, Daniel Ziesche researches the changing roles and socio-cultural functions of football clubs in selected regions of England and Germany with the aim of a deeper analysis of processes of change with regards to community formation, identity construction and the generation of social capital. Contemporary historical research is done by Pia Stemmermann regarding the values in the social field of sports clubs. She focuses on the values of a sports club as a seismograph for societal change to analyse the social respectively public welfare functions of sports clubs.

Sport-political Structures, Contents and Processes of the Spanish Sport System

Researcher at IESF:

Ninja Putzmann

Period of research:

2012-2014

Funding:

German Sport University

Contents of the project:

In the European area numerous journals and articles offer an overview about the development of national sport policies and describe the institutional structures of sport, organisational and financial framework conditions. Nevertheless, empiric-analytic nation studies to explain correlations between sport structures, processes, and contents are missing as well as a theoretical fundament to analyse sport systems.

Deriving from the central question for the characteristic sport-political structures, processes, and contents of the Spanish sport system, three subordinated goals are defined: Firstly, the investigation of the theoretic-conceptual level by an adaption of the political scientific system theory including the terms of sport polity, sport politics and sport policy for the sport system of Spain as well as the effects of Europeanisation. On the typological level theoretically founded categories or typologies are developed to analyse the Spanish sport system. Focusing on some exemplary regions, the applicability of those typologies is empirically tested. Third the empiric-analytic level is examined by sequencing and summarising of new and existent data about the Spanish sport system respecting special characteristics of single regions of Spain to relate sport political structures, processes and contents.

Perspectively, the elaborated categories can be used to enable a comparison of distinguished European sport systems what implies a certain degree of generalisation to this paper.

Preparatory Activities for a Centre of Competence for Sport in Asia

Head of the project at IESF:

Prof. Dr. Jürgen Mittag

Period of research:

Since September 2012

Partners:

Beijing Sport University(BSU)

Contents of the Project:

The fast and dynamic development of Asia attracts the interest of the media and the academic world alike. Though sport has not been the centre of attention, the reflection on Asian – and in particular on Chinese – sport development promises important insights. Against this backdrop the Institute of European Sport Development and Leisure Studies aims at deepening the transnational cooperation in sport related research between Asia and Europe. Major fields of interest are the areas of economics, elite sports and urban planning/health/grassroots sport as well as civil society.

One key activity has been a set of congresses on Chinese sport development and German-Chinese sport cooperation in 2012/13. It is planned to initiate a number of workshops on specific topics and research questions in the next years. In addition to this, the exchange of academics, doctoral students and master students will be increased.

Sites of memory of Sport and their Role for National Identity

Head of the project at IESF:

Dr. Michael Groll

Period of research:

since 2011

Contents of the project:

The starting point for this research is that every social group develops a memory of its own past that highlights its unique culture and unique identity. French sociologist Maurice Halbwachs asserted that collective memory is always selective; different groups of people have different collective memories, which in turn give rise to different modes of behaviour. In that way, nations are like imagined communities (Anderson), characterised by collective memories. Crucial in understanding cultural memory as a phenomenon is the distinction between memory and history. This distinction was put forward by Pierre Nora who pinpointed a niche in-between history and memory. Simply put, memories are the events that actually happened, while histories are subjective representations of what historians believe is crucial to remember. Within this figuration, sites of memory are crystalised symbols of the collective heritage, both material and non-material in substance, exemplifying collective identity and character.

This research examines the role of sport within collective memories. National memories may appear especially in mega sport events, embodied in outstanding athletes, condensed in national symbols, icons, and narrations, which are circulating through all kinds of media. For example the German Football World Cup success in 1954 is still being narrated, as well as the stunning experience of Football World Cup 2006 in Germany. Narrations about these events include typical topoi like "Wunder von Bern" or "Sommermärchen". This research has its focus on mega sports events. What ingredients of sports events are necessary to become a national site of memory? What is the role of the media? What kind of societal reception is needed? The outcome of this research is a model description of the interaction of cultural, historic, and media-related elements with which it is possible to examine the importance of a sport event for the collective memory of a nation.

Bourgeois and Trade Unionists: Ludwig Rosenberg

Period of research:

2011-2014

Funding:

Fakten für eine faire Arbeitswelt.

Contents of the project:

The research project is anchored in the area “work and leisure studies” and blends into the shortly recorded upswing of trade unionist biography which may broaden the knowledge of the trade union’s elite in general and inform about trade union history in Germany. In line with this, the project is devoted to the biography of Ludwig Rosenberg.

Although the project is mainly a political, organisational and socio-historical biography one, it contributes to the debate about underlying tendencies of the economic, social and political development of West Germany in the post-war period. Also known as “westernisation” this development has been applied to unionist history as well.

The biography investigates political problems of the unionists from the 1940s to the 1970s, their scope of action, their internal structures and external relationships and the changes of the union’s societal stance in this period. Finally, it inquires how Rosenberg can be ranged in the trade unionist elite. Of specific interest for IESF’s academic research is the “European role” of Ludwig Rosenberg since he was deeply rooted in several European networks (among others the Monnet’s Action Committee) on the one hand and the discussion about work and leisure at that time in which Rosenberg was engaged on the other.

Rosenberg’s biography conveys deep insights into the internal structures of the umbrella organisation of the unions, the relations between chairpersons of single unions and the president of the federal committee and the organisation of political culture of unions. The final result of this project will be the publication of a biography in 2014.

Breakthrough Chiparamba Sports Academy (BCSA, Zambia)
Organisation of Rural Primary Education Developers (ORPED, Ghana)

Contents of the project:

Following the Conference on “Transformation and Development through Sport (TADS)” in Pretoria, South Africa in September 2013, seven participating academic organisations and NGOs, namely the University of Ghana, the German Sport University, the University of the Western Cape, the International Council of Sport Science and Physical Education (ICSSPE), the Breakthrough Chiparamba Sports Academy (BCSA, Zambia) and the Organisation of Rural Primary Education Developers (ORPED, Ghana) founded the International Scientific Network for Sport for Development (ISNSD).

Together they set the objective to develop a global and multi-disciplinary network of academic organisations and NGOs for continuous contribution to the advancement of sport for development curricula, programmes and policies. Hereby, the network aims to establish evidence-based international benchmarks and standardised criteria for curriculum development and educational measures with regard to and across various policy sectors (health, development, sport, youth, education etc.), sports and working areas (community development, peace building etc.).

Concrete measures as a first step include the development of a database containing patterns, curricula, projects and partners; the provision of assistance and expertise in research, teaching, and community engagement in the field of Sport for Development as well as the stimulation of a quality assurance discussion with university and non-university curriculum providers to enhance the standards and qualification levels of personnel delivering sport-for-development programmes.

“Recall: Games of the Past – Sports for Today”

IESF staff entrusted with the project:

Dr. Michael Groll

Period of research:

October 2013 - october 2014

Funding:

European Commission

Project partners:

Contents of the project:

“Recall: Games of the Past – Sports for Today” aims to reintroduce European Traditional Sports and Games (TSG) into the daily lives of young Europeans to achieve two main objectives:

- to preserve and promote an endangered and critical part of European culture and heritage, as well as
- to implement TSG as the effective resource to increase participation in Sport for All that TAFISA and its collaborative partners know TSG to be.

The project “Recall” will not only produce practical and educational tools to reintroduce European TSG into today’s society for five key target groups – schools, universities, sports clubs and associations, event organisers and people with disabilities – but also identify, collect, document and promote European Traditional Sports and Games via the creation of a European TSG database and heritage list. This dual approach will allow Europeans, in particular young Europeans, to rediscover and reinvigorate regional, national and European heritage whilst tackling modern issues such as sport and physical activity participation and social inclusion.

Research Project on Bath Tourism and the Development of the Mona Mare Waterpark in Monheim, Germany

Head of the project at IESF:

Prof. Dr. Jürgen Mittag

IESF staff entrusted with the project:

Yannicka Kappelmann B.A.

Period of research:

July – November 2013

Contents of the project:

The broader framework of this study refers to the question what changes are characteristic for the development of public baths in Germany. The study focuses in particular on the question how the “mona mare waterpark” has developed over the past few years and why a decrease in the numbers of visitors can be identified. The project is related to a master thesis that aims at revealing the development and origin of the “bath tourism” in Germany. It focuses on the change of swimming pools to waterparks involved with the change in society and upcoming trends. A lot of swimming pools are modified to waterparks with slides and spa areas to keep pace with changing trends and to hold against the decreasing number of visitors. Furthermore, the thesis compares different waterparks and their visitor development over the past few years. By creating various scenarios, an outlook will be given to show where this development in trends and society will lead to.

The study combines different research techniques, such as a survey and personal interviews. Different possible types of visitors for the waterpark in Monheim are surveyed to get an overview about the motives for people to visit this waterpark. Furthermore, it will be questioned what the “mona mare waterpark” has to change to increase its number of visitors.

The further Development of a Coordinated Network for Sport Coaching in Europe (CoachNet)

Head of the project at IESF:

Dr. Karen Petry

Period of research:

January 2012 – June 2013

Funding:

European Commission

Partners:

Leeds Metropolitan University (applicant coordinator – UK), German Sport University (GER), Institute National du Sport, de l'Expertise et de la Performance (FRA), Coaches Academy Cologne of the German Olympic Sport Confederation (GER), National Olympic Committee – Netherlands Sport Federation (NL), Polish Coaches Academy (PL), Portuguese Coaches' Confederation (POR), NLCoach (NL), Advisory Council of Sport Coaches (ES), Professional Coaches of Finland (FIN), Hungarian Coaching Association (HUN), European Athletics Coaches Association (EU), International Tennis Federation (INT), International Council for coach Education (external partner – INT)

Contents of the project:

The Institute of European Sport Development and Leisure Studies was partner in the EU-funded project "The further development of a coordinated network for Sport Coaching in Europe (CoachNet)". CoachNet is one of only twelve projects that were chosen out of 106 proposals by the Sport Unit of the European Union to receive funding.

The 13 project partners from nine European countries are coming from the sectors of Higher Education, National Coaching Organisations, and International Federations. Under the supervision of Leeds Metropolitan University (UK), the project pursued the objective to establish a coherent and inclusive mechanism for the coordination of sport coaching at the European level.

Following this objective, CoachNet aimed at including stakeholders in the following categories: Coaches' Associations (National & European level); lead national organisations in sport coaching; international federations (European level); higher education institutions; employers of coaches.

This network specifically emphasised the 'voice of the coach' in order to strengthen cohesion within Sport Coaching. Also, during the project, the partners developed reference points for the education and development of sport coaches, as well as providing a focal point for representation, research and communication on sport coaching issues at the European level.

Action for Good Governance in International Sport Organizations

Dr. Michael Groll

Period of research:

January 2012 – June 2013

Partners:

Danish Institute for Sport Studies/ Play the Game; Universities of Leuven, Utrecht; Loughborough and Ljubljana; Swiss Graduate School of Public Administration and the European Journalism Centre in Maastricht.

Funding:

European Commission

Contents of the project:

To achieve better governance in sport, many sports organisations need to revise their internal and external mechanisms to cope with the on-going commercialisation, professionalisation and globalisation of sport. The procedures of policy making as well as precautionary administrative measures to avoid cases of corruption, mismanagement and fraud in the future are increasingly important, as are public awareness and involvement in issues of governance in sport to. Although no “one-size-fits-all reform” solution exists, many underlying structural reasons for mismanagement and corruption are similar in different sports organisations. Through analysis of governance structures and standards in a number of international sports organisations, a set of guidelines to be used as benchmarks has been developed.

These guidelines do not have the potential to impact the daily practice of sports organisations, but also to improve the awareness level and debate about governance in sport among important stakeholder groups such as media, public authorities, fans, sponsors and athletes.

Sport and foreign policies: A German-Israelian perspective

Alexander, Kevin

Cologne: Deutsche Sporthochschule Köln, since 2014 (in preparation)

Leisure – Tourism – Sport: The Impact of Sport in the 1970s.

Diana Wendland

Cologne: Deutsche Sporthochschule Köln, since 2014

The dissertation project is dealing with the development of leisure sport as an essential part of leisure activities and daily routine since the 1970s. The focus lies on the role of sport and sport participation in a postmodern event based society “Erlebnisgesellschaft” (Schulze 1997) and of the importance of a “mental” value or consciousness of leisure sport beyond the rules and norms of competitive sport. Against this backdrop the thesis differentiates between sport in leisure and leisure sport. The example of the development of sport tourism shall illustrate the general “sportization” of society.

Opportunities and Limitations of Youth Sport Programs in Cape Town: Analysis of Determinants in the Context of Development and Their Impact on Research

Biermann, Marie

Cologne: Deutsche Sporthochschule Köln, since 2011

supported by the Cusanuswerk: Bischöfliche Studienförderung

The research project is embedded in the broader field of sport-for-development and is located in Cape Town, South Africa in two different projects. Both projects aim at life-skill development but are different in structure and program. The research takes place while the intervention is still ongoing, with the data being collected from February till July 2013 and February till July 2014. The projects are not only being analysed in terms of their effectiveness and processes with regard to life-skill development but also concerning the methods used for evaluating the interventions. What are the effects of sport-based life-skill programs on youths? How do these effects come about? Which processes underlie them? What conditions are necessary for sport-based life-skill programs to have beneficial outcomes? In order to answer these questions two qualitative methods, the ‘Most Significant Change’ method and participant observation, are applied, as well as quantitative approaches. All of them are used complementary to assure triangulation, increasing reliability and validity of measures, and also getting insights into the same sociological phenomenon from different perspectives. Is there a difference in the appropriateness of the methods used to identify processes? Is there a difference in the appropriateness of the methods concerning the different projects and programs? The methods themselves are also analysed concerning their useful application in different programs and fields. So far, the MSC-method and participant observation have successfully been applied in areas outside sport and imply a potential for innovations in the area of monitoring and evaluating sport-in-development projects.

The Relation of Governmental and Non-Governmental Sport Politics in Germany and France

Fischer, Christoph

Cologne: Deutsche Sporthochschule Köln, since 2009

The fundamental question of the research project concerns the similarities and differences between the German and the French sport system referring to the cooperation and the reciprocal understanding of governmental and non-governmental institutions of sport administration and aims on defining their characteristics. The empirical proceeding is based on an analysis of the legal foundations of each system. This includes statutes, regulations, statutes of clubs and federations, target agreements and other bilateral settlements as well as the structures and construction of each sport system and interrogations of experts and representatives of governmental and non-governmental institutions of Germany and France. The paper aims to extend and refine the existent structural and political comparisons in sport sciences. Against the backdrop of political science approaches of pluralism and neo-corporatism, the results of the empirical research will be discussed with a special focus on the features of sport as a sector of the society.

No Normal Sport in an Abnormal Society: Characteristics, Achievements and Limitations of Protests in Sport Against the Apartheid Regime in South Africa

Hangebrauck, Jan

Cologne: Deutsche Sporthochschule Köln, since 2013

The dissertation refers to the field of transnational history (of sport) and analyses the effects of the protests in sport in South Africa but also in the Federal Republic of Germany, in the German Democratic Republic and in the United Kingdom against the apartheid regime. The work will focus on the investigation of the 1960s, 1970s and 1980s, beginning with the Sharpeville massacre, which led to a massive increase and radicalization of protest against the apartheid regime, and ending with the first democratic elections in South Africa in April 1994 which sealed the end of apartheid.

Due to a lack of literature on the effects of protests in sport during the end of the apartheid regime, the study aims to identify variables for the effects of protests with the help of archival studies in the above mentioned countries and with the use of qualitative interviews, mainly with sport officials and former athletes. It will be the purpose of the thesis to offer new insights into the impact of protests in sport. In that way the work intends to contribute to intensified linkages in the academic fields of the history of sports, of sport sociology and of sport politics.

European Commission and Sport: Increasing "Centralism" or "Spill-Over" in a Multi-Level-Governance-System?

Kornbeck, Jacob

Cologne: Deutsche Sporthochschule Köln, since 2009

As a PhD by published work, this thesis aims to revisit the activities of the European Commission (in particular but not exclusively within the years 2001 2011) to find evidence of a diversification of the sport policy field. This allows for a feedback loop towards two fundamental theoretical positions of European integration and relevant research: spillover as used in federalism/neo-functionalism as well as multi-level governance. Empirical evidence is provided through 15 already published papers within three problem areas: EU-sport articulation; anti-doping; Health-Enhancing Physical Activity (HEPA). The exercise of critically revisiting these papers was inspired theoretically by the model of the reflective practitioner.

"Spiritual Coaching" – Theological, Social Science and Sport Science Perspectives on a New Occupational Area

Micic, Michael

Cologne: Deutsche Sporthochschule Köln, since 2011

Aim of this interdisciplinary project is to analyse moral concepts, ideals and lifestyle of professional soccer players in order to disclose the influence of the mentioned factors on their wellbeing and sport performance. Furthermore, the research focuses on deriving a "Spiritual and Life Coaching" model for the professional German soccer within reflecting the boundaries and possibilities of such a coaching model. As in the English and Brazilian soccer spiritual coaching by so called "Sport Chaplains" is already set in praxis, existent analyses of this area are used to develop the model. The collection of data in professional German soccer clubs is done by interviews with officials and players.

Impacts of Sport on the Regime Changes and Transformation Processes in Iraq and Egypt

Ousu, Ali

Cologne: Deutsche Sporthochschule Köln, since 2012

Sport fulfils numerous functions between state and society. Sport serves in particular to form national group identities, fosters international understanding, enhances cooperation and exposes the individual. Although sport is a widely autonomous system that follows specific rules and dynamics, it is open to the allocation of meanings and new functions, but also to societal changes. The ongoing revolutions in the Arabic world will not only impact the society, but also the sports system by changing the framing circumstances and the functions or meanings of sport. The dissertation wants to consider and analyse these changes of the sport system among the current societal and political transformations.

Sport-Political Structures, Contents and Processes of the Spanish Sport System

Putzmann, Ninja

Cologne: Deutsche Sporthochschule Köln, since 2012

Anti-Doping-Politics in the Federal Republic of Germany

Risse, Gunnar

Cologne: Deutsche Sporthochschule Köln, since 2012

The project uses the theoretical and methodological instruments of political science to deal with the developments in the fight against doping in Germany, beginning in 1990. While findings from applied economics, sociology and history are taken as a starting point, the main aim of the analysis is to describe and understand the relationship and goals of different actors in the field of anti-doping-policy, using the framework of actor-centered institutionalism. To explain the influence of single actors, the project refers to a multi-dimensional theory of power. In addition, key ideas from political network-analysis, Tsebelis' thoughts on veto-players and some basic components of the principal-agent-approach are taken into consideration. To gather information about the object of investigation, the study uses content-analysis as well as semi-structured guided interviews with policy-makers and decision-makers from sport organisations. It is the purpose of the study to systematically describe past developments, understand the current situation and develop different scenarios for the future with regard to their likeliness.

Sport Clubs and Sport Values in Change

Stemmermann, Pia

Cologne: Deutsche Sporthochschule Köln, since 2012

The importance of a sport club is based on its memberships, its resources and its financial possibilities. Mostly disregarded are the values within a sports club. Sports clubs stand for an internal and external integration of certain values. These values are an important aspect of modern society and take an impact on public life. The individual adapts certain values from other social contexts and introduces them in a sports club. The question of influence and meaning of values within a sports club on and for the individual the society and the state can be raised. Within the context of this thesis the change of values in the Ruhr area is of special interest. The panel study of values in a sports club is based on sources of chosen sports clubs. Sources are literature produced by the sports club, such as celebratory publications, club papers or charters.

Organised Sport in Transition: Social and Cultural Functions of Football Clubs in England and Germany

Ziesche, Daniel

Cologne: Deutsche Sporthochschule Köln, since 2012

The various transformational processes which shape modern societies (e.g. globalisation, individualisation, and urbanisation) present football clubs (and sport clubs in general) with critical challenges with regards to their future development. Likewise, the self-proclaimed functions which sport clubs allegedly traditionally fulfil are being increasingly questioned. Against the backdrop of an ongoing regional structural transformation – along with a shifting social structure within the geographical sphere of influence of the clubs – the project raises the question in how far roles and functions of football clubs have changed and how resistant or adaptable clubs present themselves in view of those transformational processes. The project thereby focuses on transformational dimensions within three functional fields which football clubs allegedly fulfil: Collective identity construction, community building, and the generating of social capital (understood both in Putnam's and Bourdieu's tradition).

The qualitative analysis will investigate football clubs from regions in England and Germany which have been subject to severe structural change that confronts the football clubs in these regions with formidable challenges. The investigated clubs are playing at the fourth and fifth level of the league pyramid. Firstly, because at this level strong club-internal tensions are presumed with regards to the future alignment of the clubs; secondly, because football research tends to focus on the top tiers of the league system and widely neglects non-league football. The project at hand intends to contribute to the closing of this blind spot in research. Main objectives of the project are on one side to expose how regional localisation and differences in the structural organisation of football clubs have repercussions on the adaptive abilities of these clubs. On the other side, alleged functions of football clubs for modern societies are expected to be proven or to be refuted which would allow for the delivering of a theoretical framework. On this basis a further and deeper-reaching analysis of social and cultural functions of clubs could be achieved.

The Role of the Asian Football Confederation

Weinberg, Ben

Cologne: Deutsche Sporthochschule Köln, 2010-2013

Football is the most popular sport in the world. However, globalisation and commercialisation of the game have also created new conflicts and challenges in football and politics. The thesis explores the role of the Asian Football Confederation (the AFC) within the rising significance of the football in Asia, drawing on three key theoretical perspectives: globalisation, neoinstitutionalism and governance, as well as comprehensive data from interviews and archive material. It explores the organisational structure of the AFC, its decision making processes, relations with other actors and policies put forward. To understand the specificities AFC has faced in its 60-year history, the broader historical, political, economic, socio-cultural and geographic contexts of football in Asia are taken into account.

V.1 Symposium „Boycotts and Lockouts in Sport“

Date:

September, 12th – 13th 2013

Partner:

Bundeszentrale für Politische Bildung

Venue:

Bochum, Germany

Under significant media response but largely neglected from an academic point of view are sport boycotts and lockouts in sport. They can be considered as instruments that have been widely used to enforce political, economic or social goals that are not usually linked directly with the interests of sport.

Why are athletes voluntarily missing sporting events? What are further forms of exclusions and what effects do they have? These questions, backgrounds, characteristics and effects of voluntary renunciation and sports exclusions were systematically highlighted at the conference "Boycotts and Lockouts in Sport" that took place September 12th and 13th at the House of History of the Ruhr University in Bochum. The Conference organized by the Institute of European Sport Development and Leisure Studies at the German Sport University Cologne in cooperation with the Bundeszentrale für Politische Bildung dealt with historical boycotts and current public debates in view of a national and international dimension.

During a public event on Thursday, September 12th, contemporary witnesses from sports and politics led by Wolf-Dieter Poschmann discussed the experience and impact of sport boycotts - especially with regard to the 1980s.

V.2 Sport Systems and Sport Governance in Europe: Changes, Challenges and the Multi-Level Perspective. (Sport&EU Conference 2014)

Date:

June, 26th – 27th 2014

Cooperation:

9th Annual Conference of Sport&EU hosted together with the Institute for Political Science (University of Mainz, Arne Niemann, Alexander Brandt)

Venue:

Cologne, Germany

“Sport Systems and Sport Governance in Europe: Changes, Challenges and the Multi-Level Perspective” – the 9th annual conference of Sport&EU was hosted by the German Sport University Cologne from June 26th to 27th 2014. It was jointly organised by the Department of Political Science of the University of Mainz and by the German Sports University’s Institute for European Sport Development and Leisure Studies. The hosts were Prof. Dr. Jürgen Mittag (Cologne), Prof. Dr. Arne Niemann and Dr. Alexander Brand (Mainz).

The unflagging convergence between sport and other social areas as well as the increasing interference of governmental and non-governmental players on the organisation of sport indicates the growing importance of the relationship between policy-making and sport. The triggered substantial changes within the European sport system in particular and sport governance in general still lack systematic research. Against this backdrop, the conference aimed to enhance research on European sport systems in view of either the national and the European level – and its linkages.

The three-phase certificate program has been founded in 2012 by a joint initiative of the DOSB (German Olympic Sports Confederation), the Federal Foreign Office and the Institute of European Sport Development and Leisure Studies of the German Sport University Cologne under the leadership of Dr. Karen Petry.

Now that the first Foreign Sport Experts in Africa or Latin America are successfully in operation, another 20 participants have been developed to multipliers in sense of freedom, tolerance and understanding. Additional to the five-day-workshop there is another practical phase in which the experts are becoming active in sport associations, government and development organisations to promote the creation and strengthening of sport structures, of popular sports and social development.

V.4 Workshop WM Brasilien 2014

Date

16th May 2014

Venue:

Cologne, Germany

For months the World Cup 2014 has been analysed from the perspective of politics and media. The construction of stadiums, the protests of the population and the requirements from the FIFA are reflected critically as well as the media reports and the working conditions for journalists. The workshop had the objective of uptaking these and further current problem areas and bringing them into context of research questions and approaches, which the scientific consideration of sport communication and sport politics will focus on in the foreseeable future. Furthermore, changes of the scope of sport as well as the scientific access were taken into account. These questions and connecting factors were developed in total in five panels, which were introduced by keynote speeches and examined in the subsequent podium discussion.

V.5 Further and planned activities

Sport as a Motor of Health Policy: Approaches, Stake Holders, Areas of Conflict

Date:
31st October – 2nd November 2014

Partner:
Hamburger Sport-Kongress

Venue:
Cologne, Germany

In the context of the 7th International Hamburg Sport Congress, the German Sport University Cologne is hosting the 6th Symposium of Sport Policy. The Symposium of Sport Policy includes the following topics: Areas of program activities:

The working environment

Do health and working environment exclude each other or can they cooperate?

In context of this section the outstanding sociopolitical importance of sport and its contribution to physical, mental and social health and their importance for an intact working environment are highlighted. Political commonalities and diversities of the different operators are demonstrated by contributions of prominent representatives from politics and associations with a view on the cooperation of health and sport in the working environment.

Health policy between local authorities, schools and leisure sports: networked health promotion?

This section looks at the issue of positions from local authorities and institutions in health policy as well as movement and sport in the view of health promotion. In this way governmental and association-related dimensions are investigated as well as the meaning of health and sport in tourism.

European dimensions of sport and health policy

A view beyond the German horizon changes perspectives and possibilities of representations of interests. The last section provides information about the European dimension of health policy by a view on other countries and analyses on EU-health policy.

In Transition: Sport in Mediated Modernity

Date:

20th November 2014

Venue:

Cologne, Germany

In 2012 the German Sport University has established the key research project „Sport of the mediated modernity“. This research priority is supported by four institutes of the GSU. Its main objectives are the systematic processing and the theoretical and conceptual location of the serious changes in the sport & physical activity cultures of modern societies which occurred within the last decades and go on nowadays.

Based on the previous activities the research priority presents first results of the sub-projects as well as of the overall context on his final conference as a basis for discussion

In this context, experts of sport science and scientists of other nearby scientific disciplines discuss the changes in the culture of sport and physical activity which are typical for the overall societal development. The second question is to what extent changes in sport and human motion cultures have a seismographic function for the social change.

The conferece will be held with support of the Fritz-Thyssen-foundation.

The program is composed of visits of the Council, the Parliament, and the permanent representation of the federal Government of North Rhine-Westphalia, the Commission and the EOC. In 2011 and 2012, more than 50 students participated in the excursion and collected valuable insights into contents and codes of practice of European sport politics. The visit permitted knowledge transformation from theoretical seminars and gave insights into potential occupational areas.
European Academy of Sport (EADS), Bocholt	The European Academy of Sport celebrated its 20-year-jubilee in 2012. Over this time period the Academy has worked closely with the IESF, which had initially helped with the set up. Naturally both institutions share a number of common interests and goals in the field of sport development. Of specific interest to both of them are the European level of sport and the inevitable Europeanisation of sport. Both the Academy and the IESF can look back on a year-long experience with different projects and are actively engaged with conferences and publications regarding these issues.
Jambo Bukoba	Within the scope of research in the field of development through sport, the IESF co-operates with Jambo Bukoba e.V. to scientifically support and theoretically evaluate a development project in Tanzania. After conducting a basic needs study,

	developing a concept for the region, establishing co-operations with local authorities and educating PE teachers in 2010, the evaluation of the project contents and their implementation, the compilation of a textbook for PE- teachers and the advancement of workshops accounted for the IESF's work on this project in 2011.
Play the game	Play the Game is an international conference and communication initiative aiming to strengthen the ethical foundation of sport and promote democracy, transparency and freedom of expression in sport. It is run by the Danish Institute for Sports Studies (Idan), an independent institution set up by the Danish Ministry of Culture. The aim is to measure sportive achievement not in terms of increasing numbers of spectators or new records, but social benefits. The initial question of PLAY!YA is: How can sport trigger personal development, cultural diversity and social participation? Since 2008 PLAY!YA has been working on the research and practise of the social potential of sport. They stimulate dialogue between people and organisations, collect ideas and information and develop methods, concepts, events and projects.

Since May 26th 2010, the ICESSD and the IESF have been cooperating in the areas of teaching, research and community development to exchange knowledge and learn together and from each other. In teaching, common curriculums and modules for sport and development are to be developed.
