1. PREFACE

The period between summer 2017 and 2018 has been an important stage for the Jean Monnet Chair at German Sport University. The second intake of the Master programme on “International Sport Development and Politics” with students from ten countries have entered German Sport University while four conferences were held that attracted broader attention of the academic world and of media alike. The conferences dealt with topics such as labor relations and representation in sport, with changing sport development in China and Europe, with good governance in national sport organisations and with the economic history of sport in the 20th century.

This 7th annual report – covering the period from August 2017-2018 - pays attention to the teaching (chapter 3) and conference activities (chapter 6) of the institute in detail. The report also presents an overview on ongoing projects (chapter 4) and dissertations (chapter 5). In addition, publications and talks (chapter 7) given by the academic staff of the institute are briefly put on view.

As an overall tendency, this report indicates that the process of growth and differentiation in sport politics is a persistent trend. The new informal network “POLIS” (Policy and Politics in Sport) that came together in September 2017 in Cologne to hold its first meeting shows that these processes will take place in a European and international framework. Accordingly, participation in these activities is highly appreciated.

Jürgen Mittag, August 2018

2. MISSION STATEMENT

The Institute of European Sport Development and Leisure Studies and its Jean Monnet Chair are contributing to the European dimension of sport in particular and to the international development of sport structures in general.

They are part of the German Sport University Cologne (GSU), one of the largest specialised universities world-wide as academic centre of teaching and research in physical education and sport science. In modern facilities, more than 30 sports are taught at 21 academic departments in theory and practice. Around 5,500 students, including 350 foreign students, are studying at the GSU, which offers academic Bachelor’s and Master’s degrees, teaching certificates for various school levels and doctoral degrees.

The ongoing interdependence of sport and other societal fields, the increasing economic power of sport, the growing influence of governmental and non-governmental actors on the organisation of sport, its framework, and the continuing Europeanisation and globalisation have increased the importance of sport politics. However, the development of a political science inspired approach to sport and the formation of a particular branch addressing the broad range of sport-related political issues are still at the very beginning.

Against this background, activities of the IESF aim to cooperate with national and international academics in order to bring together findings from political, social and sport sciences. The overall goal is to illustrate the specific core of sport political action by taking into account the three dimensions polity (structural-institutional), politics (procedural) and policy (content-related). For all dimensions, it is important not only to consider the horizontal differentiation between autonomy and governmental regulation, but also the vertical differentiation between local, regional, national, European and international levels, to meet the needs of a sport political multi-level system. This view is mirrored in the two main research areas of the Institute: national, European and international sport systems and politics and the role of sport in international development cooperation.

MANDATORY TEACHING ON OTHER TOPICS

Hands on European Sport Politics: Institutions, Organizations and Political Process in Brussels

The field-trip to Brussels is a longstanding favorite for students and staff. It brings a hands-on experience with concepts, contexts and policies in the field of European and International Sport Politics and comes with the chance of developing contacts and access to practitioners.

In 2018, building on the existing network several new institutions and sights were added to the programme, so that it consists of three full days with ten visits: Parliament, Council and three different branches of the Commission represented the European core institutions. European Olympic Committees, European House of Sports and EU Athletes covered the actors of organized and commercial sport and the exhibitions at the Parlamentarium and the House of European History completed the tour.

3.2 FINAL THESES IN 2017/18

The following final theses have been supervised by the Institute of European Sport Development and Leisure Studies in the winter term 2017/18 and in the summer term 2018 (report period)

3.4 MASTER DEGREE PROGRAMME: INTERNATIONAL SPORT DEVELOPMENT AND POLITICS

The M.A. programme „International Sport Development and Politics“ directed by the Institute of European Sport Development and Leisure Studies and the Institute of Sport History at the German Sport University Cologne is designed primarily for graduates of sports, social sciences and humanities who have a strong interest in the political, cultural, economic and social aspects of sport. Due to the interdisciplinary nature of the master program and its diversity requirements, it is also open to applicants from other disciplines.

Aiming at a comprehensive understanding of structures, actors and conflicts in sport and physical activity, it provides an international focus on sport, including transnational and comparative dimensions. In order to obtain a profound knowledge and understanding of sport in its political, social, cultural and economic framework, the program combines sport sciences with humanities, social sciences and economics. The programme is highly research oriented and fosters problem-solving capacities as well as methods for understanding and analyzing sport.

Truly international in its orientation, the master programme strives to qualify students for responsible occupations in the field of sport development in sport organizations, governments and administrations, as well as non-governmental organizations.

Succeeding the premier cohort, the second generation of students entered the master programme in the winter semester 2017/18. From a broad and international field of approx. 80 applicants, 29 students were selected. The group includes 19 male and 10 female participants. Approximately a third has completed a bachelor's degree programme at the German Sport University, and a wide variety of other relevant degrees is also represented. As in the first cohort, the countries of origin in addition to Germany (18) are mostly outside the EU (10). Representation from other countries of the European Union, however, is low (1).

In January 2018, the programme directors conducted an internal evaluation workshop comprising all relevant stakeholders and focusing on potential improvements and modifications. In the follow-up, capacity building measures have been taken such as the installation of a program coordinator, a working group focusing on coherency as well as the initiation of international partnerships and exchange formats. Furthermore, internal and external marketing activities have been advanced including a buddy and alumni programme. Given the increasing significance of sport policy matters worldwide the directors expect the programme to establish itself in a sustainable way.

4. PROJECTS

4.1 SPORTED – Sport and Politics

Organisations, Regulations and Themes in the European Dimension

Having been honored with the Jean Monnet title the institute and its chairholder are constantly aiming at deepening the academic linkage between sport and EU politics. After a series of academic conferences on European sport politics (e.g. the Sport & EU conference 2014) and the implementation of new teaching activities (e.g. the new Master program on “International Sport Development and Politics”) the institute has most recently issued several publications (e.g. “Europäische Sportpolitik” published by Nomos and the annual contributions to the Yearbook of European integration on European sport politics). It is planned to deepen these activities by fostering teaching cooperation and publications at the European level.

4.2 ERASMUS+ Intercultural Education through Physical Activity, Coaching and Training (EDU-PACT)

Coordinated by the University of Vienna, this project targets a major, current societal problem: The migrant and refugee crisis in Europe. The consistent migrant flow towards Europe poses new cultural challenges across all European societies. Regardless of what is done to handle this situation, it is clear that a great number of people, including children, will need to be integrated and welcomed into our societies. Schools as well as sport clubs are an important vehicle to facilitate this integration.

However, teachers and schools are often under-resourced and under-funded to deal with the new challenges posed by this situation. The objective of the project is to help address these challenges and to develop innovative, evidence-based intercultural pedagogy in physical education and coaching. This pedagogy will be namely based on the extensive hands-on experience from two reputed international NGOs: Right to Play (RTP) and the Vienna Institute of International Dialogue and Cooperation (VIDC). The EDU-PACT project will develop sustainable approaches in order to equip physical education teachers as well as coaches with inclusive, intercultural behaviour.

4.4 ERASMUS+ Take it to the Street

Together with local and international partners, ISA, Game Denmark, Game Lebanon and 3X3 Unites, the project aims to provide young people – primarily from multicultural backgrounds or marginalized areas – with the opportunities to belong, engage and participate within their communities. Young people in Europe, especially within the previous mentioned social sectors, are facing social exclusion within labour markets and education structures. Further, they face exclusion in relation to social rights and opportunities associated with individual development. The omission of these characteristics can be considered counteractive and undermines the goals and hopes of social cohesion within communities. Thus, sport is identified as having unique democratic capabilities that bring about social cohesion and participation of individuals, regardless of their background, religion or socioeconomic status.

In cooperation with the partner organizations the institute is developing theory-based foundation documents, guiding material for practitioners and policy makers about the design, implementation and monitoring and evaluation of street sports interventions as well as manuals on topics, such as life skills, mediation through street sports that can further be used by practitioners from the field.

4.5 National Sports Governance Observer: Benchmarking sports governance across national boundaries

The main aim of SGO 2017: 'National Sports Governance Observer: Benchmarking sports governance across national boundaries' is to assist and inspire national sports organisations to raise the quality of their governance practices. The project involves in the first instance the partners included in the Erasmus+ application and will try to attach partners from third countries inside and outside the EU in the course of 2017 and 2018. More specifically, the project sets out to enable sports leaders and outside stakeholders to measure, discuss and amend the governance standards and practices of sports organisations by adapting and applying the Sports Governance Observer benchmarking tool in national sports organisations.

4.6 Comparison of National Sport Systems in Europe: Concepts, Models and Theories

The aim of this project is to develop variables, indicators and explanations to characterise national sport systems. There will be a shift of focus from formal sport and political actors as well as legal frameworks towards dynamic sport policy processes and their outputs. By this, new perspectives of the relationships and interdependencies between sport and politics will be gained.

Since 2018, a new network for a closer cooperation of academics who work in the emerging field of sport politics or who deal with political issues related to sport is created. Named POLIS, it stands for Policy and Politics In Sport.

The first network-meeting of POLIS has successfully taken place in Cologne. It was the objective of the workshop to explore further perspectives in this field. In addition to disciplinary, methodological and theoretical aspects particular attention has been given to comparative studies in sport politics. The workshop has not just produced inspiring discussions but also provoked concrete activities that will be carried out in the next months.

4.7 ERASMUS+ EU Football Agents: Promoting and Supporting Good Governance in the European Football Agents Industry

The project aim is to promote and support good governance in the context of the regulation of football players' agents in the EU. The research will result in meaningful policy impact by informing how private actors and public actors will approach the issue of agent regulation in the future. By extension, the research will inform the approach taken by other sports to the question of player agent regulation. The issue of good governance is relevant due to longstanding concerns regarding the operation of the player agent industry. As acknowledged by successive EU documents, these concerns tend to be of an ethical and legal nature including financial crime and the exploitation of young players. These issues threaten the fairness of sporting competitions and the integrity of sportspeople. The issue is of particular current relevance given recent changes to the way in which football agents are regulated.

4.8 ERASMUS+ Blueprint for Skills Cooperation and Employment in Active Leisure

The active leisure sector, including the fitness and outdoor sectors, has intensively worked on its own skills agenda in recent years. It recognises the importance of the need for an implementation plan based on the policy recommendations of the Expert Group on Human Resources Development and EU New Skills Agenda. Accordingly, the Blueprint for Skills Cooperation and Employment in Active Leisure project focuses on developing new skills for current and future workers, improving employability of young people, and supporting entrepreneurship and growth across the sector.

The project brings together leading actors in a formidable partnership of expertise to implement the project, which includes the development of a skills survey to identify gaps and shortages, an analysis of the challenges and opportunities within current qualification structures, and the development of new, European-level qualifications.

The project will especially reflect on the changing roles of fitness and outdoor workers in developing skills to meet new digital technologies, promoting health-enhancing physical activity (sometimes with other healthcare professionals), and working with special population groups.

The IESF, through the affiliated European Network of Sport Education (ENSE), will lead the mapping of the European active leisure sector, especially as it relates to the status and awarding of qualifications.

4.9 International Scientific Network for Sport for Development (ISNSD)

Following the Conference on “Transformation and Development through Sport (TADS)” in Pretoria, South Africa, in September 2013, seven participating academic organisations and NGOs, namely the University of Ghana, the German Sport University, the University of the Western Cape, the International Council of Sport Science and Physical Education (ICSSPE), the Breakthrough Chiparamba Sports Academy (BCSA, Zambia) and the Organisation of Rural Primary Education Developers (ORPED, Ghana) founded the International Scientific Network for Sport for Development (ISNSD).

4.10 Scientific Monitoring of the Sector Programme „Sport for development“

In recent years individual sport-related measures have been carried out repeatedly in the German Development Cooperation; this issue was, however, never systematic and fully established.

For this reason the Federal Ministry of Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ) established a project sector on the subject in order to bring together the experience and cooperate in the German contribution to „Sport and Development“. The Sector Programme “sport for development” is anchored within the Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ) GmbH, which as a federal enterprise supports the government in achieving its objectives in the international Development Cooperation and bringing them into action.

The IESF is involved as a scientific institution in consultation, monitoring and evaluation processes. The development, implementation and evaluation of empirical studies in different countries, as well as the development of theory-based foundation documents about “Sport for Development” are, among others, tasks of the institute.

4.11 Educational Program for Syrian Refugees and Host Communities in Turkey – Youth Development and Social Cohesion through Sport

Since September 2017, the Institute for European Sport Development and Leisure Studies (IESF) has been working on the project which is run by the German Olympic Sports Confederation (DOSB) on behalf of the German Association for International Cooperation (GIZ).

The project aims to provide Syrian and Turkish children and youth with improved access to formal education and collaborative services in the Turkish cities of Gaziantep, Kirikhan and Şanlıurfa, which are found along the Turkish-Syrian border. In 2017 and 2018, the DOSB, in collaboration with the GIZ, conducted fourteen sport-related workshops in order to strengthen social cohesion between Syrian refugees and Turkish host communities. Within the workshops, Turkish and Syrian multipliers establish sport and exercise opportunities in places such as associations, schools and community centres. To determine the quality of the workshops and to assess the effects of the workshops on the multipliers, the institute develops and guides ongoing evaluations. They provide concrete information related to the (participants'/multipliers') perception of sport, their attitudes and their own perceived coaching competence. Additionally, beyond the evaluations, a follow-up process is in place to supervise multipliers in implementing and applying the learnt content from the workshops.

4.12 CARE - Sport for Social Change and Education in Bosnia and Herzegovina

The project is implemented by OTAHARIN, an organisation that promotes education, inclusion and the rights of Roma. Financed by the Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ), co-financed and initiated by the Stiftung Hoffnung 1-plus, coordinated by CARE Germany-Luxemburg, the project addresses 40 children and youth in Bijeljina, a city in the north-east of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The participants consist of 70 percent Roma and 30 percent non-Roma children, all of whom do not go to school regularly. The Roma children especially face challenges related to prejudices and discrimination.

The present project is the first time that OTAHARIN includes sport activities, namely football in this case. Nonetheless, the project is based on a holistic approach: The participation in football training is directly linked to regular attendance in school, additional workshops with a focus on health issues are obligatory and the parents are incorporated in the educational process as well. The role of the IESF is mainly focused on three areas: First, in cooperation with the local coaches, strategies are compiled on how to adjust football training in order to achieve the project objectives. Second, a curriculum, which defines thematic areas and provides related drills and games, is developed. Finally, the scientific monitoring and evaluation of the programme is an essential task of the IESF team. Through quantitative and qualitative data collection before and after the intervention possible effects of the programme shall be determined.

4.13 Regional Programme Sport for Development in Africa

Expert advice in the development and application of an output-oriented monitoring system for the regional programme „Sport for Development in Africa“

Together with local and international partners, GIZ implements the Ministries' Initiative on „More space for sports - 1,000 opportunities for Africa“. The project aims to use sport as a tool to bring positive changes in sub-Saharan Africa. To better achieve development policy objectives through sport, the project supports Ethiopia, Kenya, Namibia, Mozambique and Togo. The IESF supports the project by providing specialist advice on the development and implementation of an output-oriented monitoring system as well by evaluating data continuously. The monitoring system aims to combine information from the partner countries and to document the achievement of objectives in terms of country-specific indicators at different levels (effects at macro, meso and micro level). For this purpose, indicators as well as quantitative and qualitative data collection instruments were developed.

4.14 Research Centre on Chinese- European Sport Politics

The fast and dynamic development of Asia attracts the interest of the media and the academic world alike. Though sport has not been the centre of attention, the reflection on Asian – and in particular on Chinese – sport development promises important insights. Against this backdrop, the Institute of European Sport Development and Leisure Studies aims at deepening the transnational cooperation in sport related research between Asia and Europe. Major fields of interest are the areas of economics, elite sports and urban planning/health/grassroots sport as well as civil society.

In 2017 the international conference „Changing Sports Development: China and Europe: Inventories, Case Studies and Interactions“ took place in December. In 2018 the centre welcomed 13 students from China for the 2nd Summer School on Tourism and Leisure.

4.15 History of Workers' Welfare Association (AWO) 1919 to 2019

In December 2019, the 100th anniversary of the “Arbeiterwohlfahrt” (AWO) - founded by social democrats after the First World War - will be celebrated. The goal of the project is a well-readable and carefully illustrated study on the multilayered history of this particular organisation. The project is based on research in different historical archives, on primary sources such as contemporary newspapers or annual reports and on the many existing academic and commemorative publications. The process is supported by an advisory board consisting of social scientists, historians and leading members of the AWO itself, which meet twice a year. At the end of October 2017, a two-days workshop took place in Bochum presenting first results of research. The study will be structured largely chronological. The focus will be laid on the prehistory of charity work by social democrats in the German Kaiserreich and during the First World War as well as the foundation as a committee of the SPD in 1919. Examples and explanations for the rapid growth and expansion of its activities during the Weimar Republic will be presented. After 1945, AWO was reestablished as an independent welfare association but maintained close links to the SPD. The welfare sector experienced an unprecedented expansion in the postwar economic revival. In the 1970s and 1980s, the voluntary social engagement and AWO membership reached a peak. During the 1990s, the organisation successfully expanded to Eastern Germany but also had to implement necessary structural reforms under increasingly difficult economic circumstances. The study will try to analyse the fundamental changes including testimonies and their reports in order to answer the general question if and when the AWO was a pioneer of societal change or reacted primarily on external influences.

4.16 Audience research

Until the beginning of the 1970s, little was known about the audience of sporting events. Dr. Hans Stollenwerk is a research pioneer, who developed this field scientifically. He and his team have investigated changes such as the composition, behavior, motives and desires of sport audiences, as well as changing aspects of marketing of sporting events and put them in a general societal context. The studies are based on aspects of different sciences such as leisure research, sociology, social psychology and sports economics. Additionally, international sports events have been included in the investigations.

4.17 Leisure and Tourism Research in European Perspective

The IESF pays particular attention to the development of work and leisure in the history of Europe. Against the backdrop of social, cultural and economic changes in work and leisure, several studies explore the evolution and consolidation of “mass” and “alternative” tourism and the ongoing changes in the field of leisure sports. The dissertation of Diana Wendland, submitted in 2018, has contributed to the development and impact of alternative travel guides as a visual school of tourism gaze. The study on “representation of work” published in 2018 by the FES has deepened the means and media of changes in the world of work. In addition, several talks on work and leisure have been given in 2018 for instance at the conference „Muße und Arbeit“ – „Otiose Leisure and Work“ in Freiburg. Next step will be a textbook on tourism history that enhanced the humanities and social science perspectives on leisure and tourism research.

6. CONFERENCES AND EVENTS

During the period 2017/2018, the IESF was in charge of organizing several conferences.

Workshop: POLIS (Policy and Politics in Sport)

The first network-meeting of POLIS – (Policy and politics In Sport) - has successfully taken place in Cologne. POLIS aims at a closer cooperation of academics who work in the emerging field of sport politics or who deal with political issues related to sport.

It was the objective of the workshop to explore further perspectives in this field. In addition to disciplinary, methodological and theoretical aspects particular attention has been given to comparative studies in sport politics. The workshop has not just produced inspiring discussions but also provoked concrete activities that will be carried out in the next months. The summary minutes offer you an overview on results and perspectives.

8th Symposium on Sports Politics: Social Relations in Sport and Representation

New unions in sport, athletes seeking to represent their own interests and a growing number of social conflicts - such as the Norwegian and Danish women footballers striking for equal pay - indicate that industrial relations and representations in sport are facing considerable challenges.

Against the existing research about labour relations, there is little data and even less analysis available for the specific area of labour relations in sport. Considering the background of the high number of hobby sportsmen, in view of the considerable share of sport in the gross domestic product, but also in view of the mobilisation potential and the dynamics of change in sport, this research gap represents a central desideratum of both socio-political and sports science research. In order to identify challenges and make recommendations for action, the 8th Symposium on Sport Policy dealt in more detail with the topics and problems of industrial relations and representations in sport.

Changing Sports Development: China and Europe: Inventories, Case Studies and Interactions

In the last two decades, in China and Europe the mutual interest in the development of politics, economy and culture has increased. The growing awareness of changes in other continental settings has fostered reinforced communication and exchange in general – as well as increased cross-border activities in the field of sports.

Against this backdrop, the conference “Changing sports development: China and Europe” was held at German Sport University on December 15th and 16th 2017. Organized by the Institute of European Sport Development and Politics at German Sport University in cooperation with the Euro-China Sport Development Association e.V., the conference brought together German academics with researchers and experts from seven universities and additional organizations in China. In addition to this, a larger number of practitioners from China and Germany contributed to the meeting. The conference followed a clear interdisciplinary approach addressing different

Workshop: From Player Agents to Intermediaries

The first meeting of the ERASMUS+ project „Promoting and Supporting Good Governance in the European Football Agents Industry“ took place on February, 2nd 2018 at German Sport University Cologne. The focus of this project is to undertake evidence based research in order to promote and support good governance in the context of the regulation of football players’ agents (now referred to as ‘intermediaries’) in the EU. Particular attention will be given to the introduction of the 2015 RWWI, that has refocussed the nature of agent regulation. Under the 2008 PAR, the focus was on regulating the agent and under the RWWI the focus is on regulating the transaction.

Workshop National Sport Governance Observer: Case Study on Germany

Starting point of the workshop was the presentation of the results as a poster gallery. For each federation a poster with basic information, the total score as well as coloured dashboards and scores for transparency, democracy, accountability and societal responsibility was prepared. The inspection of the poster gallery started with Germany's national umbrella organisation, the DOSB, and selected several indicators which highlighted particularities of the DOSB. The participants of the federations got detailed information about the results and had the opportunity to comment and explain the results from their perspective in a confidential atmosphere.

Following individual talks in front of the posters, an open discussion to share individual experiences with regard to good governance started. The intense discussion helped collecting a lot of experiences as well as wishes and restrictions.

Overall, the meeting was fruitful and interesting. As a next step interviews with the federations will be arranged to explore and assess further particularities and explain similarities as well as differences between the national sport federations in Germany.

CONFERENCE OF THE RERIS NETWORK ON SPORT AND ECONOMIC HISTORY

„Money, Money, Money!“ - Who is paying for international Sport in the 20th century?“

The conference was organised as a cooperation of the Institute of European Sport Development and Leisure Studies and the RERIS network at Deutsche Sporthochschule (Cologne) on 14th, 15th and 16th July 2018. On behalf of RERIS, Stefan Scholl (Köln) and Quentin Tonnerre (Lausanne) have been in charge of the international conference that gathered more than 12 speakers from seven European Countries.

The conference contributed to the target to foster reflection on the economy of sport in an historical perspective which has not attracted broad attention so far. In addition to country studies several sub-branches in sport and a number of case studies have been addressed.

8. ACTIVITIES IN CO-OPERATION

Partneractivities
The "Working Group" on European Integration (AEI) is an interdisciplinary scientific association that focuses on questions concerning European Integration. Among the 430 members of the AEI are university lecturers and members of research institutes, but also members of diverse institutions and organizations that work within the area of EU-Integration. The AEI wants to be understood as the central forum of Germany working on continuous interdisciplinary analysis of questions concerning European integration and development. Furthermore the AEI is member of the European Community Studies Association (ECSA).	ARBEITSKREIS EUROPÄISCHE INTEGRATION e.V. (AEI)
The European Network of Sport Education (formerly known as ENSSEE - European Network for Sport Science, Education & Employment) is an international non-profit association for institutions and provides a meeting place for debating and proposing ideas as well as common initiatives to promote education, training and employment in sport. ENSE has the observer status in the EU-Expert Group "Skills and Human Resources Development in Sport" and is an official member of the Consultative Committee of the Enlarged Partial Agreement on Sport (EPAS). The IESF co-operates with ENSE in different EU-funded projects (e.g. BLUEPRINT, EDU-PACT). Dr. Karen Petry acts as ENSE President from 2017 - 2019.	EUROPEAN NETWORK OF SPORT EDUCATION (ENSE)
The Association for the Study of Sport and the European Union (Sport&EU) is a network of like-minded academics and practitioners with an interest in the study of the relationship between sport and the European Union, both largely defined. Founded in 2005, Sport & EU's membership features now individuals from institutions in more than 25 countries from the five continents. Sport & EU is an important partner of the IESF – in particular considering regular academic contacts but also in view of conferences. The 6th annual conference of the Association for the Study of Sport and the European Union (Sport & EU), titled 'Reflections on Lisbon – past, present and future' was supported by the IESF with an own panel while in the framework of the 7th and 8th annual conference several speeches were given. The 9th annual conference was held in Cologne.	ASSOCIATION FOR THE STUDY OF SPORT AND THE EUROPEAN UNION (SPORT&EU)
Within the scope of research in the field of development through sport, the IESF co-operates with Jambo Bukoba e.V. to scientifically support and theoretically evaluate a development project in Tanzania. After conducting a basic needs study, developing a concept for the region, establishing co-operations with local authorities and educating PE teachers in 2010, the evaluation of the project contents and their implementation, the compilation of a textbook for PE- teachers and the advancement of workshops accounted for the IESF's work on this project since 2011.	JAMBO BUKOBA e.V.
Play the Game is an international conference and communication initiative aiming to strengthen the ethical foundation of sport and promote democracy, transparency and freedom of expression in sport. It is run by the Danish Institute for Sports Studies (Idan), an independent institution set up by the Danish Ministry of Culture. The task of Idan is to create overview over and insight into the field of sport nationally and internationally.	PLAY THE GAME
